Onboarding process for manufacturers

Ready to get started?

- Bing Ads will match products between Retailers and Manufacturers
- Retailers have the flexibility to stop Manufacturers from co-bidding at any time

Best Practices

Account setup

1. We recommend creating a new account for your Sponsored Products campaigns.

This isn't necessary but will make future reporting, optimizations, spend and conversion tracking easier.

Product group setup — two options

1. Leave the Product Group at All Products. This means you'll have a single bid boost for all your products.
2. If you have multiple brands, we recommend you break up your Product Groups by Brands. This will allow you to set different bid-boost percentages.

Shopping settings

1. Campaign priority: Any campaign priority will work for Sponsored Products; this won't conflict with the retailer's priority settings. Only try to set different values when setting up complex product group structures — this isn't recommended for initial campaigns.
2. Product filters: Don't use product filters. Target all products.

Bid-boost recommendations

1. If you're a manufacturer with questions about setting up the bid-boost percentages, please reach out to your account team. Your insights manager can provide bidding guidance.
